'That's worth a try. With two oranges bought in the lunch line, Jones began teaching himself to juggle, using his only funcwhole room but I could keep them up," he said. "It was just like a magical moment in my life. To be honest, I never really wanted to do anything but that after that.'

Through the rest of high school and into college, Jones honed his craft. Along the way, newspapers and other media around his Missouri home picked up his inspiring story, which at first annoyed him.

'Forest Lover' chronicles life of 1900s female artist

PAT LEVINS Contributor

Fans of historical fiction who also want to read for educational value as well of an enter-as enjoyment taining story will appreciate "Forest Lover," which blends history, biography and fiction skillfully enough to add to a reader's appreciation of culture. "Forest Lover" is the third novel of acclaimed author Susan Vreeland focusing on those who blazed a trail in the art world. In this book published in 2004, the author gives the reader a skillful portrait of the trials and tribulations of the Canadian artist Emily Carr, who struggled against turn-of-the-century Victorian codes that dictated how both women and art should be rendered and evaluated. It is a romanticized view of how the artist endured disapproval of her family and of society at large as she developed her craft with a mission to capture on canvas the totem poles carved by the Indian tribes of British Columbia. Her messianic zeal allowed the artist to produce works with bold color and expression. Emily Carr, unlike many artists, lived to see her vision vindicated as she became a major force in modern art in the dawn of the 20th century.

The vivid detail and gorgeous descriptions that are evidenced throughout this book are the result of the author's seventeen vears of research into the artist and the period. Drawing from the many journals of the artist, the author presents a loving portrait of a complex woman who ventured into isolated tribal villages and befriended the natives who carved unique totem poles endangered to become extinct because of the thrust of industrial life. The author effectively captures the artist's passion with art portraying a summary of twenty years of that effort.

The book also presents a searing social commentary on the deprivation and misery endured by the Canadian tribes having been afflicted by disease and demoralized by British conquest. The final segment of the book addresses Emily Carr's travel to Paris as a part of the artistic movement that produced modernism and cubism in the early 1900s. The artist, having obtained trust fund money from her sister, traveled to France to study the works of Van Gogh, Matisse, Modigliani and Picasso and imitated their techniques until she became dissatisfied and returned home with more confidence in her own skills.

Emily Carr was a pioneering woman who retained her obstinacy, persistence and passion until her death in 1945 at age 74.

Other equally well researched novels about artists produced by Susan Vreeland are "Passion of Artemesia" and "Girl in Hyacinth Blue." All of the authors' novels about artists are available in hardback, paperback and audio CD. They are also in the Aiken library collection.

Training makes your dog a better companion

By BARBARA NELSON, President Aiken SPCA

It isn't hard to teach your dog a few simple commands that will make him a pleasure to be around and maybe even save his life. It doesn't take long and it isn't hard to teach "sit," "here" or "stay." The key is to be consistent with your verbal command and your body language. Don't confuse the pet; they will become frustrated and not enjoy the learning and neither will you.

In future newsletters the SPCA will print simple "How to teach your dog to techniques. The first will be the "sit" and "here or come" commands. Any duck hunter, particularly here in the South can tell you how important the come back call is. There is nothing worse than watching your retriever be out of sight, floundering around in thick cattails and muck determined to find the bird, but tiring quickly. In the South there is the threat of alligators and in the North falling through the thin ice can have a tragic result. A hunter must be able to call the retriever back and give up the game to the natural predators that will eventually find it for a meal.

In both upland gamebird and waterfowl hunting many hunters teach their dogs precise hand and whistle signals in order to guide to coverts and downed birds that the dog may not have seen. There is nothing more frustrating than hunting with someone who justs lets his or her dog run out beyond gun shot range and spook the birds; or someone who is constantly yelling at their dog and disturbing a nice, fall day in the field.

Even in beagle footpacks and fox hound hunts the Master of the Hounds has to be able to control the pursuit so the pack doesn't split and chase across unknown or forbidden country.

In the home, it is more pleasant to have pets that don't jump all over visitors and who will stop barking and yapping when told to do so. One of the major challenges of an animal shelter is preventing animals from being returned because of behavioral problems. The most frequent reason for a return is that the adopted pet is hyperactive and causes too much stress. One of our missions at the Aiken SPCA is to have the time to train some of our animals to be better citizens and therefore more adoptable. Some of the animals that come into the shelter have never been socialized and may have learning disabilities from indiscriminate uncontrolled inbreeding. I am not referring to purposeful breeders, but to those people to remain intact for no apparent reason and who continuously produce litters that run wild around the neighborhood and countryside.

Most of the animals that come to the shelter are very trainable and want to please. They just need a good home and a chance to fit in.

There are many good, simple books on teaching the basic commands and there are all sorts of classes being taught by local trainers. Some of these trainers even help the shelter with its animals. When you adopt a pet from the SPCA we can refer you to one of them or even show you how to do it. Maybe you will be lucky and the pet that you adopted even knows a couple words. Remember "Lady," the shelter dog that we adopted to Universal Studios? She was a scruffy, hyperactive mutt who just needed some attention. She became a star.

Training your pet is worth the effort and not very difficult. It will make you, your dog, and your guests a lot happier. And remember, sterilized animals are less messy, less susceptible to disease, and less distracted.

Call the SPCA at 648-6863 for affordable, low-cost spay and neuter surgery.

DETROIT (AP) — Bill Cosby returned to the city for an empowerment workshop, saying there are serious problems facing blacks in Detroit that can be resolved if the community puts forth the effort.

DRUMS, Pa. (AP) — Jack Palance is auctioning off the contents of his northeastern Pennsylvania home: more than 3,000 items collected from around the world.

The three-day auction starts Thursday, and items going on the block range from the screen legend's old straw hat to an 1878 Steinway & Sons grand piano.

"People can spend $5 or $50,000 at this auction," said Phil Eagle, an antique appraiser who traveled from California to sort and catalog the items to be sold. Palance, the son of a coal BENTON, Ky. (AP) — A 15pound pooch that fended off an intruder to defend its owner has earned a spot in the Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association's Animal Hall of Fame.

Teddy Bear, a 4-year-old Pomeranian owned by Leslie Ferguson, 24, bit an armed robber in April and created enough of a distraction that Ferguson could escape to a neighbor's house. The dog was inducted into the association's Hall of Fame on Saturday.

"My husband was out of town," Ferguson said. "He was on active duty in the military, and I had a guy break into my house with a gun. He tried to force me into another room. We ended up wrestling for the gun, and Teddy bit him and latched onto his hand. I was able to get the gun from the guy. He ended up getting the gun back, but Teddy distracted him long enough where I could get out of the house."

Ferguson said Teddy Bear never hesitated, even though he had never been vicious toward anyone.

"I guess he realized that I was in danger, and he just took action," Ferguson said. "He did great.' "Teddy followed me and pretty much didn't let me out of his sight until the next day," she said. "He still keeps a close eye

Patrolman Ryan Nagy didn't want a desk job despite the obvious difficulties a man with one leg would face as a street officer. He spent a year and a half in therapy and struggled to learn how to use his new prosthetic leg made specially for work.

Nagy, 32, was crushed between two vehicles during a traffic stop in April 2005. He spent seven weeks in the hospital being treated for multiple fractures and severe head injuries.

Nagy will spend his first four weeks beside another patrolman to evaluate whether he's prepared for a full comeback. His doctor said he can go back to work without restrictions, and he's learned to drive using his left foot.

Pasted photographs of his children, 4-year-old Zachary and 3-year-old Emma, adorn his prosthesis. "They're the ones that kept me working so hard to get back to work," he said.

He was en route to the state capital, Perth, when his transmission failed outside a restaurant in the Outback town of Kalgoorlie, about 300 miles away, according to media reports.

Rather than call a mechanic, the man opted to continue driving — in reverse.

For Better or Worse

New mother at end of her rope is now hanging in there

DEAR ABBY: I am the military wife who signed my letter "Going Crazy in San Diego." I would like to apologize to you and all of your concerned readers for the worry I caused with my letter. Since I wrote you, I have been seeing a doctor and taking antidepressants, which have made a big difference. I will look into speaking to our military ombudsman as well.

I would like you and your readers to know I have never laid a hand on my child in anger, nor would I. Please understand that those were the thoughts of a scared, unsure and extremely exhausted new mother.

It's not easy to raise a new baby, but it's much harder when vou're alone for months, far away from family and friends, and don't know if you'll ever see your husband alive again.

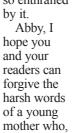

I have spoken to other new mothers in my situation and was relieved to discover I was not alone with my fears. My grandmother and an aunt are flying out to see me in a few weeks to give me a helping hand, and I'll be taking the baby to see them early next year.

My baby is doing amazingly well and sleeping through the night, which has been a big step in our happiness together. To ease her colic, I have discovered she enjoys being read to. So that's what we do together.

I have also found it's really nice to have a tiny person to cuddle, and that reading Dr. Seuss for long stretches of time is enjoyable when your audience is so enthralled by it. Abby, I hope you in her time of need, turned to you for advice. We all make mistakes, and no child was harmed during mine. I apologize for upsetting so many people. – NO LON-GER GOING CRAZY IN SAN DIEGO

DEAR NO LONGER GOING CRAZY: There is no need to apologize and nothing to be forgiven for. It is never an imposition to reach out for help to me – ever. No one is angry with you. The thousands of people who responded to your letter were deeply concerned - as was I - with your plight

I am relieved that you took my advice, are now under a doctor's care, feeling better about yourself and your daughter, and better able to function in your role as a mommy. It is letters like yours that make my column so soul-satisfying. And I know my readers will be as pleased as I am that you and wanted to offer support.

took the time to write and let us know you are back in control and receiving the support you need from your doctor and your family. - LOVE, ABBY

DEAR ABBY: I am a 13-yearold girl whose aunt has a special nickname for her. My aunt constantly calls me "Chubster!" She thinks it's funny and cute, but Abby, she doesn't know I'm selfconscious about my weight.

I know she doesn't mean to hurt my feelings, and it is supposed to be a loving nickname, but I can't help wondering why she didn't give that nickname to my older sister, who is a thin bal-

I don't want to insult my aunt, but this has to stop! Please help. – ANOTHER ABBY IN FLORIDA

DEAR OTHER ABBY: Calling you "Chubster" may have been cute when you were a baby, but it is not appropriate now. It would not be insulting to tell your aunt frankly that the nickname she has given you is hurtful, and ask her to either select another one or call you by your given name. If she continues to call you "Chubster" after that, avoid her. Maybe then she'll get the message.

Dear Abby is written by Abigail Van Buren, also known as Jeanne Phillips, and was founded by her mother, Pauline Phillips. Write Dear Abby at www.Dear-Abby.com or P.O. Box 69440, Los Angeles, CA 90069.

BIRTHDAY GUY: Green Bay Packers star quarterback

Brett Favre was born in Gulfport, Miss., on this date in 1969. Favre is a three-time MVP and led the Packers to a championship by beating the New England Patriots in Super Bowl XXI. He has appeared in eight Pro Bowls and owns the record for most consecutive games started by a QB. Since 1996, the "Brett Favre Fourward Foundation" has raised more than $2 million for charities in Mississippi and Wisconsin.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Don't make false starts. Every person in a race must wait for the starting flag. Don't be frustrated by delays or obstacles, as they merely signal this isn't the right time to start something new. TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Follow the rules. Pay bills on time, adhere to the speed limit and beat deadlines. Use your social skills to charm business associates – but hold off on finalizing agreements or commit-

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): Dot your i's and cross your t's. Accuracy is valued under these stars and the more organized you are, the better. Hold off on presentations that require approval from authority figures. CANCER (June 21-July 22): Brighten someone's day. Console someone whose computer crashes, invite the local loner out to lunch or just spread joy wherever you go. Defuse tense situations by being kind hearted.

HOROSCOPES

(July 23-Aug. 22): Certain errors may be pointed out. This might be a good thing as it gives you an opportunity to correct them. Don't ask others to adhere to standards that you aren't willing to abide by yourself. VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22):

Use a brief slowdown to your advantage. Get caught up on the bills, organize your desk and meet all deadlines. Wait to begin a key project or sign an important agreement.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Good fences make good neighbors. Know your limitations, understand the parameters and don't rush into any new venture. Sit back and wait patiently for the best time to promote your ideas.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Keep your money in your pocket. The stars are not favorable to put an important proposal into motion or to enter into a new agreement. Do your best to deal with existing issues tactfully.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): You can't fly in the face of tradition. You may be lacking funds or a thorough knowledge of the rules. Plan, strategize and carefully examine all the details in a leisurely man-

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Pointing fingers isn't polite. Concentrate on self-discipline and achieving personal ambitions, instead of focusing on the mistakes made by others. Hold off on new initiatives.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Sit still. Putting a new idea into motion or sealing an agreement now is like playing pinthe-tail-on-the-donkey. You are virtually blindfolded and will probably hit the wrong target.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Be prepared. Save money for a rainy day instead of spending it now. Get your head out of the clouds and take care of necessities. Avoid making promises or accepting favors.

IF OCTOBER 10 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY: You are quite spiritual-minded and imaginative this year while gentle Neptune sends its kindhearted energy your way. This planet provides an uplifting atmosphere and gives you a chance to get in touch with your compassionate side. Pay attention to important obligations and requirements such as deadlines and bills in October when you might have your head so far in the clouds that you ignore something important. Your life can take a turn for the better in April and May when a chance encounter or opportunity can lead to an important change of direction.

Inspiring Victory

By FRANK STEWART Irrigano Media Section

In an enspiring victory at the 2006. World Championiships, Matthew Granovetter Karen McCallian of the U.S. won the Mixed Pans. The two almost didn't start since McCallum was coming off a taking treatment for CARDON

The results were close, and today's deal from the fast session was crucial. When McCallini opened one heart as: South and West overcalled, Granovetter, North, judged to slow things down with a negative double. He considered doubling West's three clairs for penalty but wisely showed his daimand support.

KEY BID

McCallian then produced the key bid of five clubs, a fry for slaur, Though her high eard values were mannions, she had a fifth diamend. and she pictured North's hand as short in beauty and with no wastest glah yahasi

When West lest a high heart against sex diamonds. McCallum ruffed induring and judged the contract worth ensuring. She drew framps and let the jack of spades ride. Twelve tracks were certain, and plus 920 was indeed worth a fine marchpoint score.

A: Scalloped or escalloped can mean a lot of things in different parts of the country. I think of scalloped as baked with a cream-type sauce, but there are those who say it involves stewing with tomatoes.

Since I put in my time eating dorm food at the University of Missouri in the early 1970s, my educated guess is that your aunt's recipe was a baked casserole in which the eggplant was mixed with onions and a cream sauce, and topped with crushed saltine crackers and possibly grated cheese. We had something similar dished out to us at least once a week made with eggplant, zucchini, yellow or any other squash, pole beans – you name it.

I thought I'd never want to taste anything like it again, and then one day I saw it at a Morrison's cafeteria and couldn't wait to try it. This is my favorite way to make Southern scalloped glop; substitute any vegetable you like for the eggplant!

Q: Several years ago you printed a recipe for a brownie-like bar with the consistency of apple cake. It used a lot of chopped fresh apples. I never thought I would be one of those people whose newspaper copy disappeared, but here I am. Is it possible to get the recipe?

Liz Ensley, via e-mail

A: The recipe dates to August 1999 and came from Rochelle Lewis of Pembroke Pines, Fla., who said she'd been making it for more than 25 years. This has become an often-baked recipe at my house. I add raisins or dried cranberries sometimes, and like to serve the brownies warm, with a scoop of ice cream melting lusciously on top.

Extra pieces freeze well for an impromptu after-school snack. I wrap each brownie tightly in plastic so it can be warmed in the microwave, right from the freezer. Microwave ovens vary, but a good guide is 2 minutes on

Q: We enjoy your column every week. Could you help me find a recipe for a Hungarian green bean soup? It had fresh green beans, vinegar, and at the end a milk base put in that never curdled.

Willa Strahle, Phillipsburg, N.J. A: The recipe I have for zoldabableves was given to me many years ago by a neighbor in a community garden plot – along with a bag of fresh green beans. The soup is so simple and yet so delicious. My recipe isn't quite like the one you describe, as it adds sour cream at the end, not milk, and does not include vinegar. It's probable that curdling the milk with vinegar was simply a substitute for sour cream.

SLEUTH'S CORNER

Q: I am looking for a pork tenderloin recipe I found sometime in the past 11 years. It contained Yukon Gold potatoes that were microwaved. It also contained bell peppers, I think the yellow ones. It was a fast and simple dish. Carol Bottoms, Wilmington, N.C.

Q: My grandparents were Lebanese immigrants. My mother often talks of a bun her mother made that had spinach, pine nuts and possibly soft cheese. She believes the name was something like "fatayala," but we don't know about the spelling. I wonder if any of your readers might be able to help. I'd love to surprise my mom with these.

SCALLOPED EGGPLANT

1 large eggplant (for about 4 cups, cubed)

1 medium onion, chopped

1/2 cup (1 stick) butter

2 eggs 1 can cream of mushroom, celery or chicken soup Salt and pepper to taste

1/2 cup shredded Cheddar or Swiss cheese (optional) 1 cup crushed saltine crackers

Pare the eggplant, slice in half to remove seeds, then cut into bite-size cubes. Place in saucepan with water to cover, bring to a boil, and cook until very soft, about 10 minutes. Drain well.

While the eggplant is cooking, heat the oven to 350 degrees, and grease a 2-quart baking dish. Melt butter in a skillet over medium heat. Remove half the butter and set aside. Add the onions to the skillet and saute until transparent.

Add the drained eggplant to the skillet. Beat the eggs with the undiluted soup and stir into the eggplant mixture. Add salt and pepper to taste.

Transfer to the prepared pan, and top with cheese if desired. Cover with cracker crumbs, drizzle with reserved melted butter and bake 20 minutes, or until the casserole is heated through and the crumbs are lightly browned. Makes 6 servings.

2 eggs, slightly beaten

4 to 4-1/2 cups pared, diced apples 1/2 cup chopped walnuts Heat oven to 325 degrees. Grease a 9-by-13-inch pan. Sift flour, sugar, baking soda, cinnamon, nutmeg and salt into a large bowl. Add butter and eggs. Beat by hand until just combined and thick. Fold in apples and nuts. Spread in prepared pan. Bake 1 hour or until top springs back to the touch. Makes 16 servings.

HUNGARIAN GREEN BEAN SOUP (Zoldavableves)

2 pounds fresh green or wax beans (or use thawed frozen beans or four 15ounce cans)

6 slices bacon or 1 cup diced ham (optional)

2 medium onions, chopped

2 bay leaves

2 tablespoons paprika

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour

1 pint sour cream Salt and pepper to taste

String the beans and snap into bitesize pieces; you should have about 6 cups. Place in a large soup pot with the bacon, onions, bay leaves, paprika and enough water to cover the beans by an inch. Bring to a boil, reduce heat to simmer and cook 30 minutes, until beans are tender. Stir the flour into the sour cream. Stir about -1/2 cup of hot broth from the soup into the sour cream mixture, then stir the mixture back into the pot (this step keeps it from curdling). Add salt and pepper to taste, and serve. Makes 8 servings. Per serving: 202 calories (59 percent from fat), 14 g fat (8.2 g saturated, 4.2 g monounsaturated), 30.7 mg choles-

'Man of the Year' a satire in need of sharper wit

Associated Press

We've seen plenty of "Jon Stewart for president" bumper stickers, and it would be fun to see a straight-talking, scathingly satiric guy like him on the campaign trail against the usual suspects.

Barry Levinson's "Man of the Year" aims for that scenario, though, funny as he is at times, Robin Williams in the commentator-turned-candidate role is a lightweight, almost as empty a suit as the career politicians he's up against.

With a premise too absurd for belief even alongside 2000's photo-finish presidential election, "Man of the Year" becomes a campaign of character, relying mainly on its cast to see it through.

Luckily for writer-director Levinson, Williams and especially co-stars Laura Linney, Christopher Walken and Lewis Black deliver well enough to keep the movie in the race, making viewers care about these people more than the story merits.

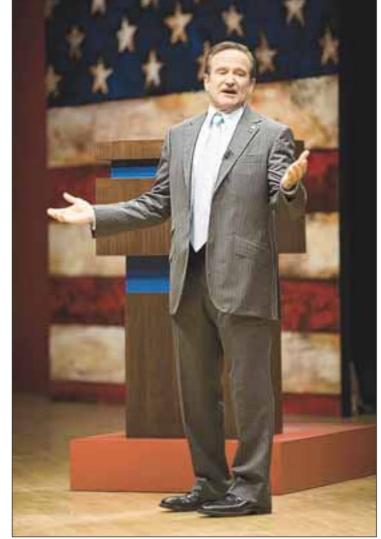

The actor and filmmaker behind "Good Morning, Vietnam" reunite for the story of Tom Dobbs, a political commentator who seems less about substance and more about the manic standup jabber on which Williams built his early career.

Williams' Tom is the comic host of a political talk show that supposedly tells it like a sickand-tired electorate wants to hear it. We're led to understand that Tom's an insightful wit whose assaults on Washington's power brokers have made him so beloved his TV audience wildly cheers at his innocent comment about running for president him-

The trouble with Levinson's screenplay is that Tom talks a lot but doesn't say much. We essentially see Williams doing his schtick, prattling in such a bluster that the mildly amusing material sounds funnier than it is, with some generic politically rabble-rousing tidbits thrown in to establish him as a voice of dissent, a title the character doesn't Even so, Tom shakes up the establishment by jumping in as an independent alternative to the bland Republican incumbent and the blander Democratic challenger. Though Tom polls like a respectable third-party candidate, it's all meant as a lark and a reminder to the real politicos that their job is to serve the American people.

Then the impossible happens. Under a new computerized

In this photo provided by Universal Pictures, TV talk show host Tom Dobbs (Robin Williams) decides that he will run for President in "Man of the Year."

voting system, Tom wins the election. As his sickly manager (Walken), head writer (Black) and other minions prepare for the transition to ultimate power, an employee of the company that developed the voting system, Eleanor Green (Linney), turns up claiming a software glitch mistakenly handed the election

It's left to Tom to reveal the possible mistake or keep his mouth shut and take the job.

With the exit-polling that private parties do in every election, Levinson's plot just crumbles. His far-better political satire "Wag the Dog," with its outrageously manufactured TV war to distract the electorate, was credible stuff by comparison.

It's outlandish that a guy on the ballot in just 13 states — and polling a distant third in those would be declared the winner without an uproar. Yet the media, the political parties and the public simply shrug and accept the fact that Tom won.

What keeps "Man of the Year" alive is the homey interplay of its principals, Tom's talk-show staff coming off like a fun family of kooks. Walken's a grand old man as the entertainment manager who becomes an unlikely kingmaker, despite an odd subplot about his character's health problems from smoking.

Black, toned down from the bellow of his stand-up act, is surprisingly even-keeled as Tom's wise and wisecracking writer. Jeff Goldblum is thrown in to little effect as the dastardly corporate attorney hiding the truth about whether or not the computerized voting system was flawed.

Linney's the real victor, creating a rich, noble, conflicted character who's much worthier a successor than Tom to the everyman heroes of such films as "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," which Levinson seems to be emulating.

There was a much better movie tucked inside the story of Linney's Eleanor, the meek corporate serf fighting back against corrupt bosses. If the title wasn't already taken by a Katharine Hepburn-Spencer Tracy classic, Eleanor would have made a fine heroine for a movie called

'Woman of the Year." "Man of the Year," a Universal release, is rated PG-13 for language including some crude sexual references, drug related material and brief violence. Running time: 115 minutes. Two and a half stars out of four.

Motion Picture Association of America rating definitions: G — General audiences. All ages admitted. PG — Parental guidance suggested. Some material may not be suitable for children.

PG-13 — Special parental guidance strongly suggested for children under 13. Some material may be inappropriate for young children.
